

ENVIRONMENTAL DATA INITIATIVE

Newsletter . June 2018

HIGHLIGHTS

EDI hosted two workshops at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque:

- Hackathon (12-14 June 2018), to collaboratively design and develop software supporting the activities of information managers and scientists working with environmental data.
- Workshop on "Creating EML with R and publishing data packages in the EDI repository" (5-7 June 2018).

We established a new approach to training in data publishing for research groups. The first application of this new training approach was at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute (24-25 May 2018) with the Research Lab of Cayelan Carey.

FEATURED DATA CONTRIBUTION

Carey C. C., R. P. McClure, A. B. Gerling, J. P. Doubek, S. Chen, M. E. Lofton, K. D. Hamre. 2018. Physical, chemical, and biological limnology of 5 reservoirs in Southwestern Virginia 2013-2017. Environmental Data Initiative. <https://doi.org/10.6073/pasta/a007fa7cd03ad2cfb4b71b2ffc209846>.

Please see here for current and previously featured data packages.

UPCOMING EVENTS & WEBINARS

For all of our upcoming events, please see here or check out our events calendar.

Webinar discussion: “Organizing data into publishable units”. 31 July 2018, 2 PM EDT.

For registration and connection information, please see here.

We will present at a number of upcoming conferences meetings (ESIP 2018 Summer Meeting, ESA 2018 Annual Meeting, OBFS 2018 Annual Meeting). For details see here.
